Heirs roars before home crowd in Delhi

NATION BRIEFS

Azam bulles

New Delhi, Oct. 16: The Azam Bulles of Delhi University shifted their loyalties from the usual bickerings to a common cause. Kicking up a storm, the students of the university took to the streets to protest against the recent spate of sexual assaults across the country, demanding strict measures from the authorities to ensure safety of women. The demonstration was a show of solidarity among students who have been fighting for justice and equality for women. This march aimed to raise awareness about the severity of the issue and encourage the government to take prompt action against perpetrators.

Jaya appeal

New Delhi, Oct. 15: A fresh appeal has been launched by the Jaya party to its supporters, urging them to stand together and fight against the current political climate. The appeal comes at a time when the country is grappling with issues such as economic slowdown, corruption, and political instability. The party is calling for unity and collective action to address these challenges and bring about positive change. The appeal has been widely circulated among party supporters, highlighting the need for a collaborative effort to overcome the current uncertainties.

US plane

New Delhi (PTI): A US plane landed at the Indira Gandhi International Airport in the national capital, New Delhi, on Saturday. This marks the first time a US plane has landed in India in over a month. The plane was carrying a team of US officials who were in the country for official purposes. The visit highlights the strong bilateral ties between the two nations and the ongoing efforts to strengthen cooperation in various fields.

CROWDED CLUB OF POLITICAL PRICES

In its classic prescriptions to princes, the Florentine Niccolo Machiavelli had reckoned heretical rulers faced “fewer difficult running states than first.” But he also held out to them a dire warning: “… one is born a prince and can only be born: all the rest is accomplished by violence and craft; Machiavelli’s isn’t a cautionary tale on the evils of political intrigue but a handbook to advise would-be tyrants. It is most it today if Thursday’s Jantar Murti show marked yet another of Abhishek Banerjee, nephew to chief minister Mamata Banerjee and Trinamool MP from Dum Dum North, being engulfed by a crowd of admirers. It is a common sight in his political party. He is Abhishek is set to join a crowded, though not always successful, club of political dynasts overrunning the fields of office. Many of the icons of statecraft and influence huddle around him, as in fact, customary tales.

The Telegraph chose a few Illustrations:

JAGAN REDDY

Jagan has been in power for a few years now, and the moment of his victory was a moment of triumph for the Telangana people. He has been able to reform the state administration and introduce several pro-people policies. His government has been praised for its transparent and corruption-free approach to governance.

SUPTENDRA

He has been in power for a few years now, and the moment of his victory was a moment of triumph for the state. He has been able to reform the administration and introduce several pro-people policies. His government has been praised for its transparent and corruption-free approach to governance.

PANKAJA MUNDO

Another Malviya son of the rab, BIPA MLA, was being cheered by a crowd of admirers. It is a common sight in his political party. He is Abhishek is set to join a crowded, though not always successful, club of political dynasts overrunning the fields of office. Many of the icons of statecraft and influence huddle around him, as in fact, customary tales.

LALU CLAN

Not only the CM of Bihar, but also the chief minister of Jharkhand, RJD supremo Lalu Prasad. He has been a key player in state politics for decades. He is known for his unorthodox governance style and his ability to connect with the masses.

CALCUTTA FRIDAY 17 OCTOBER 2014

Spotted signs of ‘awakening’ in vegetable state

How vegetative state differs from coma & brain death

The vegetative state is a condition in which a person is unconscious but able to maintain basic life functions, such as breathing and circulation. In contrast, coma is a state of deep unconsciousness in which a person is unable to respond to external stimuli or even to maintain basic life functions. Brain death, on the other hand, is a state in which a person has no brain activity and is legally declared dead.

The differences:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Vegetative state</th>
<th>Coma</th>
<th>Brain death</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Consciousness</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Response to stimuli</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Basic life functions</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brain activity</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>No</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

How to spot:

Vegetative state: The person is unconscious but can still breathe and have a pulse. They may respond to pain or stimulation, such as squeezing a finger. They may also be able to follow simple commands.

Coma: The person is deeply unconscious and unresponsive. They may not be able to move, speak, or respond to pain or stimulation.

Brain death: The person has no brain activity and is legally declared dead.

How to treat:

Vegetative state: No specific treatment is required. Treatment is focused on maintaining basic life functions.

Coma: Treatment is focused on maintaining basic life functions and preventing complications. The use of mechanical ventilation may be required.

Brain death: Treatment is not required. The person is legally declared dead.

How to care for:

Vegetative state: Care includes monitoring vital signs, providing comfort, and preventing complications.

Coma: Care includes monitoring vital signs, providing comfort, and preventing complications. The use of mechanical ventilation may be required.

Brain death: Care is not required. The person is legally declared dead.

How to decide:

Vegetative state: Care is continued until the person shows signs of improvement or deterioration.

Coma: Care is continued until the person shows signs of improvement or deterioration. The use of mechanical ventilation may be required.

Brain death: Care is not required. The person is legally declared dead.

How to address:

Vegetative state: The goal is to provide comfort and support to the person and their family.

Coma: The goal is to provide comfort and support to the person and their family. The use of mechanical ventilation may be required.

Brain death: The goal is to provide comfort and support to the person and their family. The person is legally declared dead.

How to report:

Vegetative state: Reporting is not required. Reporting is not required.

Coma: Reporting is not required. Reporting is not required.

Brain death: Reporting is not required. Reporting is not required.

Any care by the governor should be consistent with the directives given by the court.

ELIZABETH BLOOM

Washington, Oct. 15: Elizabeth Bloom, a former political consultant, has been named the new director of the White House Office of Social Media. Bloom will be responsible for developing and executing strategies to engage with the public on social media platforms. Bloom brings with her extensive experience in political communications and digital campaigning, having worked for numerous campaigns and advocacy organizations.

How to treat:

Vegetative state: No specific treatment is required. Treatment is focused on maintaining basic life functions.

Coma: Treatment is focused on maintaining basic life functions and preventing complications. The use of mechanical ventilation may be required.

Brain death: Treatment is not required. The person is legally declared dead.

How to care for:

Vegetative state: Care includes monitoring vital signs, providing comfort, and preventing complications.

Coma: Care includes monitoring vital signs, providing comfort, and preventing complications. The use of mechanical ventilation may be required.

Brain death: Care is not required. The person is legally declared dead.

How to decide:

Vegetative state: Care is continued until the person shows signs of improvement or deterioration.

Coma: Care is continued until the person shows signs of improvement or deterioration. The use of mechanical ventilation may be required.

Brain death: Care is not required. The person is legally declared dead.

How to address:

Vegetative state: The goal is to provide comfort and support to the person and their family.

Coma: The goal is to provide comfort and support to the person and their family. The use of mechanical ventilation may be required.

Brain death: The goal is to provide comfort and support to the person and their family. The person is legally declared dead.

How to report:

Vegetative state: Reporting is not required. Reporting is not required.

Coma: Reporting is not required. Reporting is not required.

Brain death: Reporting is not required. Reporting is not required.